

London, Feb. 25 1849
Friday

My dear Mr. May

Happily I have nothing to write to you about at present, (for I have no time,) excepting a line to say that I am enclosing a small bill with a note to Douglass. I shall beg him to pay you 15 on my account.

Be so kind as to pay Mr. Wallcut 10 for my subscription to the Liberator for the current year. My last receipt was for Vol. 17 No. 6 Feb. 4 1847 dated to Vol. 19 No. 6 Feb. 4 1849. But this arrangement I believe after was altered. Mr. J. S. Lusk of London being a subscriber for one year instead of my last subscribing for two. He, I am sorry to say, discontinued taking the paper from having no time to read it. Mr. Wallcut seems so regular, that I doubt he will at once understand how the matter is. My Liberator

come with unvaried regularity

The other 5/ I must beg of you to transmit as a year's subsⁿ to the "Standard," for I do not like to transmit to ~~any~~ in this small amount to be a drain upon the A. S. Fund -

Knowing that Mr. James would like to buy his subscription to the Lib^y by this opportunity I will enclose 10/ for him and to make the sum even, I will request P. D. to pay you £1.0.0. That will be for Mr. J. & myself £1.0.0.0 for the Lib^y -

For the Standard 5/ & with 5/ to be added to the Standard amount, as to any other A. S. particulars.

What do you think of the plan of H. Webb coming to lecture here on the of free labour & providence. I do not think it worth while. Mr. Richardson is the chief man. A Mr. Rhoads of Phil^a has written about it very ~~well~~ ^{wisely}.

Mr. R. has been exhorting P. D. not to desecrate Sunday, by lecturing on A. S.
Do not mention this unless you hear it from
